An officer was dispatched for an information report. The officer met with the human resources director of the business. The director reported that multiple of their business locations in San Antonio had an unknown individual call their front desks pretending to be calling from the corporate office. This individual was able to convince multiple female employees that they could be the next "face" of the business, but they would need to send him nude photos of themselves, which they did. None of these incidents took place at the Hill Country village location. The director was told that since these incidents took place within the territorial jurisdiction of San Antonio, she would need to contact SAPD to report these incidents.
