A manager of a local business requested an officer to his place of business to take a theft report. The manager reported he had left his personal trailer in a parking space along the backside of the building and person(s) unknown had taken the trailer without his consent. The trailer was secured by a large coupler lock and was last seen at the close of business on Saturday, August 17th. An employee was taking out the trash this evening when he noticed the trailer was gone and informed the manager of the discovery. The manager found pieces of the coupler lock lying on the ground where the trailer had been parked. The manager had not given anyone permission to use the trailer. The trailer was entered into police computers as stolen. This case is under investigation.

Officers were dispatched to a local business for a verbal disturbance. Upon arrival contact was made with the female caller whose company cleans the business. The female told officers she had set her car keys and some cleaning products on the ground near the elevator. She said she had gone upstairs and when she returned, her keys were missing. The female said there were four males that were painting in one of the suites. The female said one of the males made a comment to her and her husband that they (males) were going to take her car to a party. The female told the officer that one of the males described her keys to her. Contact was made with the males who told the officer that they did not take the keys. The officer had all parties involved look for the keys. A short time later the officer observed all four of the males exit the upstairs men's bathroom at the same time. The officer entered the bathroom and observed an open storage closet door. Inside the room was a large trash cart. The officer could see a set of keys under the trash cart. All four males were detained; however, the female did not want to pursue the matter. All parties went their separate ways and the officers resumed patrol.
