A business owner noticed a suspicious vehicle parked next to his business. The business owner went to check it out. He saw two teens inside of the car that were being amorous. When the male teen noticed the owner, he put his car in drive and fled the location. In the process, the teen struck the owner's truck. Police were able to track down the registered owner and inform him of what had taken place. The registered owner said he had planned on calling the police.
